

Robot Deception

Why is it that, until now, artificial intelligences have not had the ability to deceive. Is there something about deception which makes programming difficult?