

Language and Syntax

How long will it be for software to become able to detect, in any given non-technical text, the existence of irony in all Chomskyan deep and surface structural forms? How long will it be for this ability to be virtually indistinguishable from, if not superior to, a professional human writer?