

Two hands, one on the left and one on the right, are shown holding a white rectangular card. The hands are rendered in a realistic, slightly stylized manner with soft shading. The card is held in a way that it appears to be floating against a black background. On the card, a quote is written in a black, elegant cursive font. The quote is centered and reads: "I don't care what Plato said. The pen is mightier than the spoken word." The text is arranged in five lines, with the first line being the longest and the last line being the shortest.

I don't care what Plato said.
The pen is mightier than the spoken word.