

Garden of Eden

When God gave curiosity to Eve, was He in effect making sure there would be an inevitable fall of man? Assuming that knowledge is now the ultimate human pursuit, would that moment of transgression have been the ennoblement of man? What would our world be like now if neither Adam, Eve, nor their descendants had ever eaten from the tree of knowledge?