

The background features a large, faint watermark. On the left is a devil-like figure with horns and a tail, and on the right is an angel-like figure with wings. The text is centered over this background.

There must be individuals whose major gift is, by observation or intuition, knowing the main physical or psychological weakness of another. Depending on general or situational motivations, are these people friends or enemies?