

Whatever

When you can't think of anything interesting to say in response to a statement or question, you have a word.

When you want to express indifference, apathy, or disrespect, you have a word.

When you simply want to be rude, you now have a word.