

Snowflakes are one of nature's most fragile things, but just look at what they can do when they stick together.

