

MAKE YOURSELF A MORE TEACHABLE STUDENT

THE NEXT TIME A LESSON BORES YOU, BLAME YOURSELF.

Boring is not an inherent quality of what you see, hear, or read. Rather, it's usually evidence that you yourself are without sufficient patience and that your own mind lacks sufficient imagination. If your attention is generally dependent on a lesson being interesting, you're in a position of weakness, and you'll likely be a less successful learner.

Entertainment is fine, but through the power of your own mind and will, it's more important that you become able to transform what for others is "boring" into something interesting, engaging, and maybe even life changing. It's all in how you choose to respond.
