

The “Great” In-Between

Humans generally try to avoid the hard edges of life. That's where all the risk and trauma and potential or real death is. However, that's also where we can be most fully alive.