

A top-down photograph of a person sitting on asphalt. Their hands are resting on their knees, which are hairy. The person is wearing dark shorts and white socks. The text is overlaid on the image.

If both were of equal intensity and I could choose, it would not be hard picking a persistent pain over a persistent itch. Sometime my leg itches, and I scratch until it hurts. The pain is better.