

Can an uncaused event ever occur? If not, why is there a universe of things and ideas? Either God has caused everything or the universe is God.

If yes, how can the human mind conceive of an event which has no cause? We must assume that such an event is Godlike. Call this assumption faith-based. If we assume that the universe of things and ideas has always existed and will continue to exist forever, call this assumption faith-based as well.