

Compassion vs. Greed

One person argues for the compassion of collectivism while another argues for the self-serving nature of free market economics. Considering the historical record of the last century and of this century, which one occupies the moral high-ground?