

If we do indeed live in a metaverse where every possible universe exists, is there at least one which has no physical laws or constants, and which also has no irony or paradox?