

In a given situation, should you judge right or wrong based on how you feel emotionally or based on what you know?

Before you decide, remember that most of the world's ills have been caused by those who took the easy way; they felt they were doing good.

It's crucially important that an electorate is educated and knowledgeable through an unfiltered flow of facts along with the crucible of free debate.

Doing what's right is often tortuous, but it's right nonetheless.
