

Power and Love

Power is power, and it insinuates itself into any social situation. However, when there is sufficient faith in a higher power, two people can experience a union where each is in such a state of vulnerability and surrender that the union has a chance to be a sincere bonding of love.