

WEAPONIZED PEACE

When one army is clearly superior to an opposing army, it's called asymmetrical war. A couple good examples have occurred throughout history. The United States fought Viet Nam in the 60's and 70's and currently Israel is fighting the forces of Hamas in Palestine. What's interesting is that the inferior side can have a forceful weapon. Peace activists can oppose the superior force and can weaken it sometimes enough to result in victory for the inferior force or at least stalemate.

How many people have died directly or indirectly because of peace?
