

SCARCITY and LIFETIMES

Scarcity and value are directly related. As one goes up or down, the other goes up or down correspondingly.

Our mortality is what gives our lives value. As we age and life days become more and more scarce, their value goes up immeasurably. Can you imagine how valuable the moment will be when, surrounded by loved ones at your bedside, you take what you fully realize is the final exhalation, the final one?