

FAITH

SOME RELATED THOUGHTS

Knowledge of external reality is not possible, but belief about it is not only possible but inevitable.

Emotion generally control beliefs. One should control belief by using measurable and falsifiable evidence organized by sound reasoning, but this is not a natural act for humans.

There will always be a gap between what we know and what we believe. What bridges this gap is faith. By this standard, all religions are faiths, but so is atheism.