

Edges

There are no situational rules of thumb on life's moral edges. No wise principle applies all the time. When do white lies become dark? When does a helping hand become a hurting hand?