

You're only one thought away from another thought which can lead to another thought which can lead to an action creating a circumstance which presents an insoluble or even tragic moral dilemma.