

VULNERABILITY TO DOMINANCE

Animals are born with more instincts than man and are more able to survive during infancy. Man is born with fewer instincts and is more vulnerable during infancy and must learn to survive.

Ironically, this reality has made man the dominant species.