

Waiting

Has any psychological researcher studied or theorized about the effects of waiting interminably, like at your local supermarket, like DMV, like Disneyland, or like waiting for that Godot guy?

