

Writing Correctness

An illustration of a woman with short brown hair, wearing glasses and a yellow shirt, sitting at a desk. She is holding a pen to her chin, appearing to be in deep thought. On the desk in front of her is a blue laptop, a white notepad with a blue pen, and several colorful books (blue, green, and white). The background is a simple white wall.

You have to learn the conventions of written language. This is the price you pay for being allowed to break them for rhetorical or stylistic purposes.