

Deep State?

What the progressive left thought through is that they wanted to be impervious to elections. So they basically created a fourth branch of government that's totally outside the Constitution. That fourth branch of government, not just the alphabet agencies but also weaponizing the cabinet positions, to form an administrative state that has their own courts, has its own rules and regulations, is able to promulgate those rules and regulations, and has enforcement....showing how IRS, ETF, and...ETA, they have their own uparmoured enforcement apparatus. That's the administrative state.

The deep rogue element of that is the deep state; that is the combination of intelligence agencies and now the law enforcement and national security into one kind of core group that has its own mentality that is impervious to what democratically elected presidents (that) stand for the Constitution and our republican form of government...they're totally against. They have their mindset.

Is this the best conservatives can do? What a conspiritorial crock. Absolutely no evidence for any of this. Nothing. He can't even speak good!
