

Physical Law?

Assuming that processes of physical reality and natural life evolved accidentally, something else must have been in place first: laws of motion and interaction. How could these have evolved accidentally?