

The $uckening

When will congressional spenders realize and acknowledge that the iron laws of economics, like all natural law, will not suffer fools. They're still feeding our national debt. Since it could only be significantly reduced by hundreds of years of budget surpluses, economic Armageddon seems a virtual certainty, if military Armageddon does not destroy us first.