

Juvenile Writers

One type of bad high school writer is one who's never specific, preferring to offer one abstraction after another. In an age where students this old still do juvenile things, maybe one could pour glitter all over a gray sheet, wear it, and go Halloween trick or treating as a glittering generality.