

Binary Pronouns

Can 1's and 0's eventually combine in such a way that they become a code which can achieve human-like consciousness? Such a code would not only be perceptually complete but also aware of itself and its own awareness? Would this code have the impulse to search for the great questions of existence? Would it have inherent motivation to search for a higher power which it would worship?

If a code of 1's and 0's cannot achieve consciousness to this extent, any consideration of "its pronouns" would be irrelevant.