

Two elderly people, yearning for companionship, meet and fall in love. They agree to do every important thing together and plan the wedding date, and location.

Their special moment arrives. The minister instructs the doctor to begin. Minutes later, after important questions are groggily answered, he says, "I now pronounce you a clean husband and clean wife."