

Many believe life experiences are ultimately meaningless because we will eventually die. Does this mean that our experiences would be meaningful if we were immortal?